notes from the director for Pirates Past Noon KIDS

Welcome, aboard! We are so excited you have joined us for this magical journey to an 18th century Caribbean island and can't wait to share this jolly adventure on the high-seas.

Your favorite tree-climbing siblings from Frog Creek are back at it again! In this Magic Tree House story, Jack and Annie think that they are about to have a wonderful beach vacation when they accidentally stumble into Pirates searching for buried treasure. When the infamous Captain Bones and their rowdy Pirate Crew mistakenly think that Jack and Annie know where the treasure is hidden, our adventurous bookworms are captured! As they try to get back to Frog Creek, they learn a valuable lesson about pet parrots, share their love of reading, and learn the true meaning of treasure.

What an amazing few months it has been working with the exceptional staff and talented casts of Magic Tree House Collection: Pirates Past Noon KIDS! This is the first time that I have directed a Spring Youth show and I have been so grateful for the almost daily support offered by our amazing Producer, Sarah! She is so organized and always seems two steps ahead of me. Our Assistant Director and co-Choreographer, Denali, has been such an integral part of these Youth Shows for the last few years and I don't know how we would function without her skill and leadership. It wouldn't be a musical without music and our Music Director, Anya, truly helped our kids find their voice and be confident on stage. The suggestion for this show originally came from our Costume Designer-extraordinaire, Mary, who had a vision for colorful pirates and vibrant island creatures - perfect execution! As you can imagine having over 100 kids in the cast can be challenging to juggle at rehearsal, but our Dance Captain, Sarah Strube, shined in this role (and any other odd job that popped up during rehearsal)! Keep your eyes peeled for some truly creative and crafty set pieces from a new-to-VACT Set Designer, Brandon. We were happy to have someone new on board and I was so impressed by the unique materials and stunning outcomes of his hard work. A shout out to our rehearsal lobby helper, Callie, for helping make sure everyone got checked in and sent to the right room! To the staff who make our performances run smoothly and look/sound amazing - Stage Managers Pam and Amondee, Lighting Designer Jim, Master Electrician Steve, Sound Designers Dale and Tom, Music Operator Maddie, and Projection Operator Aaliyah Johnson - thank you for making it all come together. And lastly a big thank you to Dee for letting me take the reins this Spring as I put into action all the things I've learned alongside her for years.

On with the show!

TEN CONSECUTIVE YEARS | 2012-2021

notes from the director for High School Musical 2 Jr.

“Everybody one for all and all for one!” This quote from High School Musical 2 Jr.’s toe tapping soundtrack seemed like the perfect theme to round out our 2021-22 youth theater season, allowing our fabulous youth cast to join together in joyful song and dance after a challenging year.

As always, this show could not have come together without the efforts of so many incredibly dedicated people. To our music director, Dr. J. Adam Shelton, thank you for sharing your incredible talents with these kids and with me – your collaboration meant the world to me! Ellie and Alexa, the amazing choreo duo, your dedication to and creativity with this show, during your senior year no less, was invaluable, as was your energy and enthusiasm; keep an eye on these two – they are going places!! Elizabeth, as always, you bring the calm to my storm and keep me grounded and focused – thank you for your dedication to this show. Matthew and Maizy, the production assistants extraordinaire, thank you for being willing to jump into anything and for showing up every week with a smile! Alex, I was so excited when you agreed to take on this set and you are always a great production partner - you make things effortless! Paula, thank you for leaning into the chaos of these costumes and rolling with all of my ideas, and Sara, thank you for adding your colorful costume vision to the colorful sharpettes, in addition to all of your work on our program. Marie, you pulled double duty with props this spring, and I so appreciate all of your creativity and attention to detail! Bill, thank you for being willing to take on SM for this show and leap into the next level of stage managing with excitement and enthusiasm. Jai, thank you for joining us as ASM for your first VACT backstage staff show, and ditto Maddie, who sent in a volunteer form and then immediately agreed to join our energetic team, full speed ahead! Jim, I always love the calm you bring to putting our lights together, and especially in the face of the ideas I threw at you as we crossed paths at VACT over these many months. Dale, you are one of my favorite VACT partners, and I am so happy you continue to work on these youth productions, with the now special bonus of adding Tom to your team! Finally, thank you to my wonderful husband, Colin, and daughter, Erin, who are always supportive of my creative endeavors.

A special thanks to our wonderful volunteers, we could not get this show to the stage without you, and thank you to our wonderful cast families and friends, who tirelessly get their cast members to the theater every week and support them throughout these many months! But my truest thanks goes out to this wonderful group of kids that makes up our cast. Your joyful enthusiasm always keeps me on my toes, but always keeps me coming back. Thank you for bringing your liveliness and talent to this production.

To bring things back to where they started, the idea of coming together - “Everybody one for all and all for one” - helped many of us get through some tough times recently and I am grateful to have spent these months with this marvelous cast and staff coming together and collaborating on this fantastic production.

Enjoy the show!
